The Institute for the Study of Human Rights is pleased to announce the development of the Archive on the Legacy of Conflict in South Asia. In partnership with Columbia University Libraries/Information Services (CUL/IS)'s Center for Human Rights Documentation & Research (CHRDR) and the Armed Conflict Resolution and People's Rights Project (ACRes), ISHR will aid in the preservation of unique historical documentation of gross human rights violations and conflict in South Asia. This pilot project aims to locate materials that are not currently being collected and preserved by libraries and archives or are at risk of disappearing.

Book Reviews

Books for Review

- Karine Vanthuyne, La présence d'un passé de violences. Mémoires et identités autochtones dans le Guatemala de l'après-génocide. Presses de l'Université Laval, 2014.
- Olivera Simić, Surviving Peace: A Political Memoir. Spinifex Press, 2014.

Book Reviews

- Ashley L. Greene's review of Annie E. Coombes, Lotte Hughes, and Karega-Munene (2014), Managing Heritage, Making Peace: History, Identity and Memory in Contemporary Kenya. This important book highlights the potential of grassroots contributions to reconciliation while reminding us that local attempts to reconstruct memory and heritage are inseparable from state and international agendas.
