Genocide in World History
Bryant University, Smithfield, Rhode Island/USA
October 9-10, 2015

The New England Regional World History Association (NERWHA), the Mid-Atlantic World History Association (MAWHA), and the Department of History and Social Sciences at Bryant University invite paper and panel proposals for a joint NERWHA-MAWHA Fall 2015 symposium, which will focus on Genocide in World History and is scheduled for October 9-10, 2015, on the campus of Bryant University in Smithfield, Rhode Island.

Established scholars, teachers, and graduate students in all humanistic and social scientific fields are encouraged to submit proposals for panels and individual papers. The symposium organizers welcome contributions from multidisciplinary perspectives, and they further encourage panels and presentations that employ cross-cultural and transnational approaches to genocide as a historical, political, social, and/or legal phenomenon.

Regardless of disciplinary approach, contributors should attempt to place their subject matter within the context of societies and cultures in interaction with each other. The theme of genocide and its consequences as the products of sustained contact between societies and cultures in world history is at the core of the symposium.

The deadline for proposals is May 30, 2015.

Questions about the symposium and rules governing the submission of proposals should be directed by e-mail to: Professor Alfred J. Andrea, University of Vermont, aandrea@uvm.edu.
